

More Crazy
$@%#*
Families!

John Osbourne in classic "wildman" pose, Page 134

Rocker Ozzy Osbourne carries his own groceries out to his BMW.

CLOCKWISE FROM LEFT: LONDON ENTERTAINMENT/SPLASHNEWS.COM; BAUER GRIFFIN.COM; MARIO MAGNANI/GETTY IMAGES; BIG PICTURES USA (2)

STEPHEN HIRD/ASSOCIATED PR

Hall of Fame welcomes Osbourne

- Getty

Rebel rockers the Sex Pistols, Black Sabbath and Lynyrd Skynyrd were finally ushered into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame Monday after years of rejection but the Sex Pistols didn't bother to show up.

The 2006 class of inductees also included jazz legend Miles Davis and New Wave group Blondie, who made little secret of the antagonism between current and past members of the band at a ceremony marked by controversy, awkwardness and no-shows.

Still remembered for outraging British society with such nihilistic anthems as "Anarchy in the U.K.," the Sex Pistols faxed a letter to organizers saying: "We're not your monkey."

Black Sabbath, formed by four friends from Birmingham, England, almost 40 years ago, chose not to perform but singer Ozzy Osbourne, who was kicked out of the band in the late 1970s, said that was not because of any antagonism.

Several of Miles Davis' children accepted the honour on his behalf.

"Father changed the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame," Davis' daughter Cheryl said backstage, recalling his jazz roots and his impact on other musicians.

- Reuters

The talking Ozzy Osbourne bobblehead barks out catchphrases like, "I love you all, but you're all fing mad!"