Four Ring Circus

The First Family of Rock returns with a series that's part reality, part sketch show and all Osbournes. Behold, the strangest thing on TV!

SHA-RONNN! It's been five years since viewers heard Ozzy Osbourne's signature scream to get his wife's attention, and now his brood's brash behavior moves from MTV to Fox for Osbournes: Reloaded. "It's got bits of reality, comedy, sketches and musical performances," executive producer James Sunderland tells Star. "It's going to be outrageous!"

That's an understatement! Part of the show will take place in a studio where the Osbournes will entertain a live audience with comedy bits and some odd guests (including a stripping grandmother!). For the remainder of the show, the family will hit the road where they'll find themselves in some very random situations — like working at a fast food drive-thru.

MUST-SEE TV

The end result is a genre all its own. Or, as Ozzy explains, "We've got a very disturbed, dysfunctional family doing a very dysfunctional show."

If you think the Osbournes have gotten softer with age, think again. "I turned to my mum after we finished filming, and said, 'Are you sure they're going to let that on TV?'" says daughter Kelly, 24, who recently did a stint in rehab. "It's been fun pushing buttons."

For a family that loves pushing buttons, Reloaded was a long time coming. "People have always been like, 'When are the Osbournes getting back together?'" says son Jack, 23, who is excited about the show's strange format. "It just felt like the right progression for us." And Kelly agrees that if anybody was going to try reinventing reality television, it should be this family of rule-breakers. "Yes, it's a risk," she says, "but why not? We always have fun when we work together!" ★
